TIME TO CONSIDER BOWLING TROUBLES

Before Winter.

LEADERS THINK ALLEY

Without Loss.

National Bowling Association is a long way off and has no place in which to lay and sundry matters to be considered this summer which might materially affect the game

The faithful few who comprise the board of governors and the list of officers of the association, plus some new blood which has been recently injected into association affairs, will be busy at various times this summer laying plans for another winter. It may be said on good authority that Elmer E. Dungan. president of the association, is strongly in favor of a radical step. He believes that it is time to ascertain whether or sociation

For several years subtle influences have been brought to bear by powerful business organizations which have been none too helpful to any bowling organization in the East, while in the West the one great help of the American Bowling Congress has been the stanch support of this

Dungan believes that either all bowling associations must be what they profess to be or else they had better go out of existence and allow the game to run along with all its attendant evils. He is optimistic enough to entertain the view that once the alley owners bestirthemselves and sink selfishness and stutbornness all bowling troubles will immediately cease. He has gone on record as being perfectly willing to confer with alley owners if they can only get together as a whole, but even that seems to be impossible.

So the question has resolved itself into one of whether or not the proprietors are willing to carry out the spirit and the letter of proposed regulations for the thorough cleansing of the sport of tenpins and what might be called the unification of the game.

Complex though the situation is, there are those who entertain the idea that with the alley proprietors agreed and with proper support from the manufacturers the game can be vastly improved. The game has been quite free from those who would abuse the sporting privileges. through the fact that legislative, business and competitive interests have been as a unit in the discouragement of improper practices. It merely shows what can be done when all interests work together.

pins will occupy the attention of the National Bowling Association this summer, and the task is anything but pleasant. Another matter which will have to be considered is the working out of a new basis on which to conduct the National
